

MAKING SENSE OF ADOLESCENCE

with Dr. Gordon Neufeld

Making sense of adolescence provides the foundation for interacting effectively with our teens. Dr. Neufeld's unique distillation of adolescent psychology and the integration of this material with his rich experience with teens, both professionally and as a father, forms the basis for the highly sought-after insights and suggestions he provides.

This two-day course addresses issues important to parents, to educators and to helping professionals. This seminar has been used as professional development for high school teachers, as training for youth workers, as parent education for parents of teens, and as a primer for parents of pre-teens.

SOCIAL SKILLS 911

HELP FOR CLIENTS WITH ASPERGER'S SYNDROME AND OTHER SOCIAL DISABILITIES

Barbara Cooper and Nancy Widdows

Tuesday, Nov. 18

Working with children who have communication disorders and social skills deficits involves careful investigation to understand how they see the world. Looking through their "lens" is a crucial part of developing trust and making their social lives more enjoyable.

This seminar begins with clinical vignettes to attune participants to the world of the socially challenged child. The artwork of children who participate in social skills groups illustrates how these children see themselves and the people around them. You will learn to make successful creative interventions that help the child learn cognitively what most children understand intuitively. By thinking outside the box you will develop tools that help children generalize what they've learned.
